SCHOOL CENSUS IS COMPLETED; SHOWS POPULATION 9,000

OVER 2,600 SCHOOL CHILDREN IN THE CITY OF WISCONSIN RAPIDS SHOWN BY ACCURATE STATISTICS TAKEN HERE

Supt. of Schools E. G. Doudna, today reported the practical completion of the Wisconsin Rapids school census which shows over 2600 pupils of school going age in this city. The school age for the census is between 4 years and 20 years. Based on the government statistical record the school census would show a population of 9,100 people in the city of Wisconsin Rapids as the government's figures allows for a ratio of 3½ to 1. Hence the real population of the city would be three and one-half times the number of school age children.

Is Accurate Census

The school census each year is required by the state of Wisconsin and is taken each summer by experienced census takers in the city superintendent's office. Two clerks have made a thorough canvass of the city and have called at every house with the exception of a few with the result that they have reported an actual school census of over 2600. The census figures last year shows that there has been a growth of about fifty this year over last.

For State Aid

When asked if he was satisfied that the school census was correct, Mr. Doudna stated that his office has a card record of every home in the city and that each year lessens the opportunity for discrepancies. "The state aid to the schools amounting to $6.00 per person depends upon the accurate number in our census and for that reason we are very anxious to have positively every child in the school listed on the census," Mr. Doudna stated. He said that many cities preferred to take the ratio of 4 to 1 in determining the city population but he said that he believed it better to take the government's figures in ascertaining the accurate population of Wisconsin Rapids. By employing the government ratio Wisconsin Rapids should rank as a city of slightly over 9,000 population unless abnormal conditions prevail here to make this city any exception to the general rule.

Local Knights To Attend Valley K. C. Picnic Sunday

Members of the local council of the Knights of Columbus and their families will join with the Stevens Point, Wausau, Merrill, Stratford and Tomahawk councils in a picnic and celebration for all Wisconsin Valley Knights at Marathon Park, Wausau, next Sunday.

This is the first real get-together meeting of the Wisconsin Valley district, and the Knights are anxious to make it a record breaker for a good time for every one. All expenses will be pro-rated among the six councils included.

The entertainment committe from the Wausau council has done everything to make the day a success. Every family is asked to bring its own cake, but everything else will be furnished free on the grounds. There will be plenty of barbecued beef, bread and butter, ice cream and soft drinks for everyone.

Baseball games will be arranged among the ivarious councils represented, and there will also be all the good old picnic features such as tugs of war, races of all sorts, and other athletic events.

The picnic is scheduled to start at 1 p. m., with supper to be served between five and six.

Local Barber Pays Fine

L. D. Reamer, local barber, paid a fine of $10 and costs in Justice E. N. Pomainville's court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of practicing his trade without a state license. Reamer was arrested on complaint of Fred Beth of the State Board of Health.

Capitalism, Courts And Administration Attacked At State Labor Meeting

(By Associated Press)

Oshkosh, Wis., July 18—Flaying "consolidated capitalistic interests," condemning the United States supreme courts, and pointing out that the national administration had been clearly opposed to organied labor were among the things brought out in the Officers' Reports to the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor which opened its thirtieth annual convention here today.

It will be the main purpose of the 1922 convention to make strenous efforts toward the solidification of the liberal vote into a compact political organization, statements in the report indicate.

During the year fourteen unions affiliated with the Federation, seven withdrew, three amalgamated, five had disbanded, and one Federal Labor union withdrew from the A. F. of L., according to the secretaries report.

Reviewing events of the past year in the labor world it becomes more apparent, according to the report of General Organizer Henry Ohl, Jr., that the charges made by representatives of organized labor and others against the forces of reaction and destruction, as represented what he

MUTUAL EWELL CHAUTAUQUA, WHICH OPENS HERE TOMORROW, WILL TRAIN CHILDREN FOR HOME TALENT PROGRAM

All the children of Wisconsin Rapids between the ages of 6 and 15, are invited by Miss Lulu Radebaugh, junior supervisor of the Mutual Ewell Chautauqua which opens here tomorrow, to appear at the Chautauqua tent on the West Side market square at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to prepare for the children's pageant and for the boys' pyramid work which will be presented by the Chautauqua Sunday.

One hour of play, and one hour of practice for the pageant will be held each day for the rest of the week. All children, whether their parents are holders of Chautauqua tickets or not, are invited to participate. The older boys of the group, who will take part in the pyramid work and other athletic stunts, will receive their training under a young university man, who has had wide experience in this line of work.

Community Day Sunday

Sunday, the final day of the Chautauqua, is known as Community Day, and will be devoted largely to home talent productions and to a general good time and get-together. There will be games, a picnic dinner, and a program by local people under the direction of the Chautauqua artists, concluding with the great Childlren's Pageant, in which hundreds of Wisconsin Rapids boys and girls are expected to have a part.

The Chautauqua this year brings to the city some of the best talent that has ever appeared before local audiences. The nationally known Chicago Light Opera Company will appear both afternoon and evening Saturday. In the afternoon there will be concert program, and in the evening th company will present one of Guilbert and Sullivan's famous comic operas.

Grand Opening Tomorrow

The program at the grand opening tomorrow night includes performances by four well known entertainers including Leo Braverman, violinist of the American Conservatory, and Esther Hildebrandt, famous dramatic reader. Randall Parish, the well known author and orator will probably be the leading attraction Thursday evening. He will be preceded by the Girvin Artist Trio, violin, 'cello, and piano, who will play selections by the leading composers, and by William Rogerson, tenor of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, who will appear in leading operatic roles.

E. G. Doudna, city superintendent of schools, who has kept in intimate touch with the work carried on by for a number of years, speaks very highly of the program offered by the Mutual-Swell organization for their five day stay here.

Miss Jane Zabawa is enjoying a two weeks vacation from her duties as saleslady at the Steinberg Style Shop.

Property Owners Oppose Proposed Sigel Road Paving

A group of about fifteen property owners residing on Sigel Road, north of the Rudolph Road fork, appeared before the Board of Public Works at the city hall yesterday in protest at the proposed assessments against their property for paving the road.

Because the comparatively large frontage owned by the Sigel road property holders would place an unduly heavy burden on each, the assessments were originally set at a figure lower than that prevailing throughout the city. The property owners contend, however, that even the reduced rates exceed their ability to pay, and petition a delay in the carrying through of the program.

May Hold Up Paving

The whole matter is now in the hands of the Board of Public Works, which has not yet made its decision. Members of the city administration maintain that the city as a whole is not in a financial position to carry the burden of paving the street without an assessment upon the property holders, and if it is found impossible or inadvisable to make the assessments at this time the paving project will probably be left to some time in the future.

It is probable that further hearings will be held, and the matter then referred to the council for final decision.

La Follette Campaigners To Speak Here Wednesday

Lieutenant Governor Cummings, Solomon Levitan, who is running for nomination as state treasurer on the Republican ticket, and Miss Ada James will speak on present day Wisconsin political issues at the East Side band stand, in the court house yard, Wednesday evening, July 19, at 8 o'clock. In case of rain, it is said, the meeting will be held in the court room.

Lieutenant Governor Cummings and Mr. Levitan are touring the state in behalf of Senator LaFollette and the LaFollette-Blaine candidates for nomination for state offices on the republican ticket. Miss James, who is well known for her activities in state civic and political affairs, will present the campaign issues from the point of view of the woman voter.

Brief Meeting Of Nekoosa Chamber Commerce Monday

The regular meeting of the Nekoosa Chamber of Commerce was held Monday night with an attendance of about thirty. INTERESTS RAIDING PEOPLE BOB SAYS

SENATOR IN OPENING ADDRESS OF CAMPAIGN ATTACKS ADMINISTRATION MEASURES; DEFENDS WAR STAND

Milwaukee, Wis., July 18—Senator Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin opened his campaign for re-nomination as the Republican candidate for the United States senate here last night with an address outlining the issues he will place before the voters in what he described as "the great war for industrial and political freedom."

The Wisconsin senator asserted that today the most "determined and far-reaching raid is being made upon the people by the special interests by means of the Esch-Cummins law, the Fordney-McCumber tariff, the ship subsidies, unjust taxation and the surrender of the public domain and great natural resources to monopolies," and called upon the voters to elect state officers and representatives in the national Congress who would "defend the political, economic and industrial rights of the common people."

Says People Betrayed

During the course of his speech, Senator LaFollette described the industrial and political condition of the country as he sees it, and suggested remedies for the settlement of disputes and the return to normal conditions. He attacked Congress and President Harding for their attitude on national problems, saying that "the record of domestic legislation during the last few months is a history of promises broken and a people betrayed." The government's foreign policy was declared to be "un-American," and the disarmament conference called "in the interests of the great financial powers back of the conference with little concern for humanity."

Declaring that he had no ready-made theory for the solution of present problems such as the Socialists and Single-Taxers, the senator said that it was first necessary to find out the cause of the present condition of the country before attempting to apply a remedy to what he said was an unsatisfactory situation.

Favor Soldier Bonus

His support for adjusted compensation for soldiers was expressed by Senator LaFollette. "There are those, including the President of the United States," he said, "who declare that the government cannot afford to pay these soldiers any measure of compensation for the service they rendered their country. Billions for the railroads, for ship subsidies, for the profiteers in the form of tax exemption, and for military expansion, but not one cent as compensation to service men.

"The same firm convictions that influenced me in opposing entrance into the war of this country, leads me now to offer the strongest support for every measure of just and righteous compensation for all soldiers. I have not changed," Senator LaFollette said. "Once the war was declared, against my judgment; I did what I could to lighten the burden and insure the safety and success of our soldiers.

BARS MUST GO COURT DECIDES

SUPREME COURT RULES STANDING BARS ARE TEMPTATION TO LAW VIOLATION; MUST BE REMOVED

(By Associated Press,

Madison, July 18. —The provision of the Severson act prohibiting bars was held reasonable in a decision of the supreme court handed down today.

The legislature acted entirely within its powers and did not go to any unreasonable length in abolishing the bar, the decision declared. The court, in effect, sets forth that the bar affords temptation to violate the dry act by giving the drink dispenser an opportunity to impart a "kick" to the soft drinks by merely hiding behind it.

Upholds Lower Court

The validity of sections of the Severson prohibition law which require the removal or alteration of standing bars in soft drink parlors and the licensing of all places selling non-intoxicating beverages was contested in this action by Hugo Alby, a Milwaukee saloon keeper. After Judge E. Ray Stevens in the Dane county circuit court upheld the regulatory provisions of the liquor law in their entirety, appeal was taken to the Supreme court, which today reviewed the lower court finding.

The question of what constitutes a non-intoxicating beverage was also involved in the action, because of the claim of the plaintiff that soda water, ordinary forms of pop, and the various kinds of fruit juices all contained traces of alcohol. Contention was made that a strict interpretation of the law would require the licensing of all drug stores and the removal of all counters from their interior.

In his arguments before the Supreme Court, J. E. Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general, took the position that the court give what he said to be a "reasonable" interpretation of the law, establishing that any drink that contained less than one-tenth of one per cent alcohol, was no longer legally non-intoxicating. According to the statute any drink containing alcohol in some degree less than one-half of one per cent is non-intoxicating, and its sale for consumption on the premises can only be made by licensed placed.

Place New Truck In U. S. Mail Service In This City

Schaar To Move To Point

L. G. Schaar, formerly publisher of the Nekoosa Tribune, has consolidated his printing plant with a Stevens Point concern and begins Wednesday to ship his machinery and equipment to Stevens Point where he and Mrs. Schaar and family will reside. The new concern will be known as the McMurtrie-Schaar Printing Co. It is to be incorporated.

Albert Sisen of Milwaukee a well known travelling salesman in this city, is spending several days here on business.

Crepe Hanging To Dummy Policeman Is Protest Against Street Signs

Pedstrians and motorists this morning were silghtly shocked to witness the new dummy policemen at the corner of Oak and Second streets bedecked with crepe. Investigation was made and it was learned that W. P. Cummings, restauranter at the corner, had placed it there as a protest at the new corner sign post which is being rected by an Illinois advertising firm.

Made To Remove It

Chief Payne asked Mr. Cummings to remove it and the request was promptly complied with Mr. Cummings was interviewed by the Tribune and stated that he was protesting against the installation of the advertising scheme and was proud that he had done it. "I hung it up there an a mark to the death of the freedom of the streets because the city has seen fit to sell the streets to private business houses for advertising purpose. It is an outrage."

Other east side business men including F. S. Gill, John Starks, John Daly, Atty. D. D. Conway, Don Daly and others stated that they were very much opposed to selling of the city streets for advertising purposes and they state that the sentiment is general.

Want Mushroom Type

Few west side business houses have manifested the objections that seem to have been so vehemently raised by the east side people, although the sentiment as expressed very freely throughout the city is against the sale of the streets for advertising purposes and all advocate the mushroom type of traffic regulator as is now installed on the corner of Grand and Third avenues, from the standpoint of safety to the public, serviceability, durability and desirability.

Seek Prohibition Of Deer Hunting In Wood County

The State Conservation Commission has ordered a public hearing at the court house in this city August 9 to consider a petition for the complete prohibition of deer hunting in Wood county, and for other modifications in the game and hunting regulations as applied to the county.

The petition, signed by a large number of Wood county residents seeks "To close the season on certain fur bearing animals, and also to prohibit deer hunting in Wood county."

Deer have long been scarce in the county. A few are shot here every year, however, and it is said to be the hope of the petitioners that by the complete prohibition of deer hunting for a number of years at least, the animals will be enabled to increase rapidly in number.

Situation Is Serious

The situation in regard to fur bearing animals in the county has come to be regarded as serious by those interested in having these animals saved from extinction. Under the present regulations even the comparatively abundant muskrat is rapidly being depleted in numbers, and it is the hope of the petitioners that by action now the future of the trapping industry in the county may be saved for years to come.

The commission, at the hearings to be held here, will take testimony in regard to the situation from all who are interested, and will return a decision on the basis of its findings.

Guernsey Men To Meet At A. P. Bean Farm Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be the biggest day of the year in Wood county Guernsey cattle circles, when breeders from all sections will gather at the A. P. Bean farm at Vesper for the annual community picnic. Reid Murray, secretary of the State Livestock Breeder's Association will give a half hour address, on "Wisconsin & Guernseys" followed by a talk by Otto R. Roenius, mayor of Wisconsin Rapids, on "Progress".

The hour from 11 a. m. to 12 will be devoted to music, games, races, and athletic stunts. The afternoon will open with an inspection of Guernseys at 1 p. m., followed by a judging demonstration by Mr. Murray. Mr. Murray will also take charge of a judging contest for the boys and girls, which will precede the speaking.

Local Attorneys Attend Seventh Circuit Meeting

Attorneys F. A. Jalkins, D. D. Conway, B. R. and H. W. Goggins, T. W. Brazeau, J. J. Jeffrey, John Roberts and B. M. Vaughan of this city and Attorney James C. Dutton of Nekoosa left today for Marshfield to attend the annual meeting of attorneys of the Seventh Wisconsin Judicial Circuit, which includes Wood, Waushara, Waupaca, and Portage counties.

Judge Byron Parks of Stevens Point will be the principal speaker. The meeting will conclude with a banquet at the Blodgett Hotel this evening.

PLAN TO FURNISH TROOPS TO GUARD MINE PROPERTIES

HARDING ORDERS GOVERNORS TO SEND STATE FORCES WHENEVER DISORDER THREATENS; OPERATORS WILL COMPLY

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 18—President Harding today sent simultaneously, telegrams directing operators of all bituminous mines shut down because of strike conditions, to resume operations at once and requesting governors of those states in which the mines operate, to furnish such military protection as may be needed.

If state troops find it impossible to cope with the situation, federal troops, it was understood, may eventually be employed.

Will Use Guard

It was made plain at the war department that the national guard would be employed by the federal government to maintain order if the available regulars were of insufficient numbers or if the governors refused to call out guards themselves, and violence resulted.

National guard troops could be used, it was added, in other than their own states and, in effect, the government has at its disposal not only the regular army, but the full strength of the national guard.

Will Reopen Mines

Pittsburg, Pa., July 18—Important mines in the Pittsburg district will be opened without delay under the plan proposed by President Harding, it was stated here this afternoon. Already some of the companies have commenced to clean up the pits with a view to an early resumption. In two mines coal has been cut and deputy sheriffs and state police are on guard to protect the workmen when the hoisting machinery is started.

Several weeks, it was said, would be required before the mines would be ready for a even assemblance of normal coal movement.

Illinois Law Interferes

Springfield, Ill., July 18—State law forbids the working of Illinois coal mines by any but licensed miners and the Tanner act forbids importation of workers "by the state of Illinois to operate them" Robert M. Medill, attorney for the miners declared this afternoon when informed that President Harding had ordered the reopening of the mines.

Report New Attack

Wellsburg, W. Va., July 18—A mine guard stationed on the hill above the Clifton non-union mine, where yesterday morning Sheriff H. H. Duvall and three other men were killed when the property was attacked by a large force of marchers from over the Pennsylvania line, rushed into Cliftonville early today with the report that men were preparing for another attack. Captain White, commander of the state constabulary, immediately sent forces into the hills but they returned empty handed.

Vesper Man Pleads Guilty To Liquor Violation Charge

Joe Patrenets of Vesper pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the Severson prohibition enforcement law before Judge Byron Parks at Stevens Point yesterday and was fined $150 and costs with the alternative of four months in the county jail. Patrenetz was unable to pay the fine.

Patrenets was arraigned before Justice E. N. Pomainville Saturday. He waived examination at that time and asked to be taken before Judge Parks so that he might plead guilty at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Dell Warner of Wausau and Mrs. Etta Garland of Milwaukee are guests of Mr. and Mrs D. Wescott, Witter street.

BARS MUST GO COURT DECIDES

SUPREME COURT RULES STANDING BARS ARE TEMPTATION TO LAW VIOLATION; MUST BE REMOVED

(By Associated Press,

Madison, July 18. —The provision of the Severson act prohibiting bars was held reasonable in a decision of the supreme court handed down today.

The legislature acted entirely within its powers and did not go to any unreasonable length in abolishing the bar, the decision declared. The court, in effect, sets forth that the bar affords temptation to violate the dry act by giving the drink dispenser an opportunity to impart a "kick" to the soft drinks by merely hiding behind it.

Upholds Lower Court

The validity of sections of the Severson prohibition law which require the removal or alteration of standing bars in soft drink parlors and the licensing of all places selling non-intoxicating beverages was contested in this action by Hugo Alby, a Milwaukee saloon keeper. After Judge E. Ray Stevens in the Dane county circuit court upheld the regulatory provisions of the liquor law in their entirety, appeal was taken to the Supreme court, which today reviewed the lower court finding.

The question of what constitutes a non-intoxicating beverage was also involved in the action, because of the claim of the plaintiff that soda water, ordinary forms of pop, and the various kinds of fruit juices all contained traces of alcohol. Contention was made that a strict interpretation of the law would require the licensing of all drug stores and the removal of all counters from their interior.

In his arguments before the Supreme Court, J. E. Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general, took the position that the court give what he said to be a "reasonable" interpretation of the law, establishing that any drink that contained less than one-tenth of one per cent alcohol, was no longer legally non-intoxicating. According to the statute any drink containing alcohol in some degree less than one-half of one per cent is non-intoxicating, and its sale for consumption on the premises can only be made by licensed placed.

Place New Truck In U. S. Mail Service In This City

E. F. Gilmaster has purchased a Chevrolet Model 490 light delivery truck, which will be placed in use carrying mails to and from the local post office. The truck was sold through the Zeaman agency of this city.

Schaar To Move To Point

L. G. Schaar, formerly publisher of the Nekoosa Tribune, has consolidated his printing plant with a Stevens Point concern and begins Wednesday to ship his machinery and equipment to Stevens Point where he and Mrs. Schaar and family will reside. The new concern will be known as the McMurtrie-Schaar Printing Co. It is to be incorporated.

Albert Sisen of Milwaukee a well known travelling salesman in this city, is spending several days here on business.

Crepe Hanging To Dummy Policeman Is Protest Against Street Signs

Pedstrians and motorists this morning were silghtly shocked to witness the new dummy policemen at the corner of Oak and Second streets bedecked with crepe. Investigation was made and it was learned that W. P. Cummings, restauranter at the corner, had placed it there as a protest at the new corner sign post which is being reeted by an Illinois advertising firm.

Made To Remove It

Chief Payne asked Mr. Cummings to remove it and the request was promptly complied with Mr. Cummings was interviewed by the Tribune and stated that he was protesting against the installation of the advertising scheme and was proud that he had done it. "I hung it up there an a mark to the death of the freedom of the streets because the city has seen fit to sell the streets to private business houses for advertising purpose. It is an outrage."

Other east side business men including F. S. Gill, John Starks, John Daly, Atty. D. D. Conway, Don Daly and others stated that they were very much opposed to selling of the city streets for advertising purposes and they state that the sentiment is general.

Want Mushroom Type

Few west side business houses have manifested the objections that seem to have been so vehemently raised by the east side people, although the sentiment as expressed very freely throughout the city is against the sale of the streets for advertising purposes and all advocate the mushroom type of traffic regulator as is now installed on the corner of Grand and Third avenues, from the standpoint of safety to the public, serviceability, durability and desirability.

Seek Prohibition Of Deer Hunting In Wood County

The State Conservation Commission has ordered a public hearing at the court house in this city August 9 to consider a petition for the complete prohibition of deer hunting in Wood county, and for other modifications in the game and hunting regulations as applied to the county.

The petition, signed by a large number of Wood county residents seeks "To close the season on certain fur bearing animals, and also to prohibit deer hunting in Wood county."

Deer have long been scarce in the county. A few are shot here every year, however, and it is said to be the hope of the petitioners that by the complete prohibition of deer hunting for a number of years at least, the animals will be enabled to increase rapidly in number.

Situation Is Serious

The situation in regard to fur bearing animals in the county has come to be regarded as serious by those interested in having these animals saved from extinction. Under the present regulations even the comparatively abundant muskrat is rapidly being depleted in numbers, and it is the hope of the petitioners that by action now the future of the trapping industry in the county may be saved for years to come.

The commission, at the hearings to be held here, will take testimony in regard to the situation from all who are interested, and will return a decision on the basis of its findings.

Guernsey Men To Meet At A. P. Bean Farm Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be the biggest day of the year in Wood county Guernsey cattle circles, when breeders from all sections will gather at the A. P. Bean farm at Vesper for the annual community picnic. Reid Murray, secretary of the State Livestock Breeder's Association will give a half hour address, on "Wisconsin & Guernseys" followed by a talk by Otto R. Roenius, mayor of Wisconsin Rapids, on "Progress".

The hour from 11 a. m. to 12 will be devoted to music, games, races, and athletic stunts. The afternoon will open with an inspection of Guernseys at 1 p. m., followed by a judging demonstration by Mr. Murray. Mr. Murray will also take charge of a judging contest for the boys and girls, which will precede the speaking.

Local Attorneys Attend Seventh Circuit Meeting

Attorneys F. W. Calkins, D. D. Conway, B. R. and H. W. Goggins, T. W. Brazeau, J. J. Jeffrey, John Roberts and B. M. Vaughan of this city and Attorney James C. Dutton of Nekoosa left today for Marshfield to attend the annual meeting of attorneys of the Seventh Wisconsin Judicial Circuit, which includes Wood, Waushara, Waupaca, and Portage counties.

Judge Byron Parks of Stevens Point will be the principal speaker. The meeting will conclude with a banquet at the Blodgett Hotel this evening.

PLAN TO FURNISH TROOPS TO GUARD MINE PROPERTIES

HARDING ORDERS GOVERNORS TO SEND STATE FORCES WHENEVER DISORDER THREATENS; OPERATORS WILL COMPLY

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 18—President Harding today sent simultaneously, telegrams directing operators of all bituminous mines shut down because of strike conditions, to resume operations at once and requesting governors of those states in which the mines operate, to furnish such military protection as may be needed.

If state troops find it impossible to cope with the situation, federal troops, it was understood, may eventually be employed.

Will Use Guard

It was made plain at the war department that the national guard would be employed by the federal government to maintain order if the available regulars were of insufficient numbers or if the governors refused to call out guards themselves, and violence resulted.

National guard troops could be used, it was added, in other than their own states and, in effect, the government has at its disposal not only the regular army, but the full strength of the national guard.

Will Reopen Mines

Pittsburg, Pa., July 18—Important mines in the Pittsburg district will be opened without delay under the plan proposed by President Harding, it was stated here this afternoon. Already some of the companies have commenced to clean up the pits with a view to an early resumption. In two mines coal has been cut and deputy sheriffs and state police are on guard to protect the workmen when the hoisting machinery is started.

Several weeks, it was said, would be required before the mines would be ready for a even assemblance of normal coal movement.

Illinois Law Interferes

Springfield, Ill., July 18—State law forbids the working of Illinois coal mines by any but licensed miners and the Tanner act forbids importation of workers "by the state of Illinois to operate them" Robert M. Medill, attorney for the miners declared this afternoon when informed that President Harding had ordered the reopening of the mines.

Report New Attack

Wellsburg, W. Va., July 18—A mine guard stationed on the hill above the Clifton non-union mine, where yesterday morning Sheriff H. H. Duvall and three other men were killed when the property was attacked by a large force of marchers from over the Pennsylvania line, rushed into Cliftonville early today with the report that men were preparing for another attack. Captain White, commander of the state constabulary, immediately sent forces into the hills but they returned empty handed.

Vesper Man Pleads Guilty To Liquor Violation Charge

Joe Patrenets of Vesper pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the Severson prohibition enforcement law before Judge Byron Parks at Stevens Point yesterday and was fined $150 and costs with the alternative of four months in the county jail. Patrenetz was unable to pay the fine.

Patrenets was arraigned before Justice E. N. Pomainville Saturday. He waived examination at that time and asked to be taken before Judge Parks so that he might plead guilty at once.

HOPE FOR CONGRESSMEN

Although termed a vacation, the the adjournment of the house will be, for most members, a period of strenuous work. A great majority of the members are candidates for re-election.

In enumerating the achievements of the present house, Floor leader Mendell dwelt at length on economics effected and constructive legislation enacted, and presented a convincing exhibit for the defense in the case that critics of congress are attempting to make out against it. After handing over this supply of campaign ammunition to his fellow members, the floor leader made an excursion into the psychology of anti-congress cussedness. Blaming congress, he told his colleagues, comes natural to the electorate; membership in that body is at risk of unpopularity. All of which the average congressman knows, or will soon know, from bitter experience.

While much adverse criticism has developed against congress throughout the country, all is not gloom ahead. In 22 Republican primaries, 86 house incumbents have been renominated. From this it would seem that sentiment against congress is not being centered on individual members. The silver lining of the cloud so graphically pictures by Representative Mondell, which is thus revealed, will be hailed as a most welcome omen by seekers after reelection generally.

HARDING KEEPS HANDS OFF

In opposing Senator Johnson for the Republican nomination for United States senator from California a man named Moore has made it difficult for President Harding to continue his policy of strict neutrality in primary fights. For Moore, who will probably be defeated is being boomed by the opponents of Johnson as a supporter of the president. If he loses of course it will be heralded by the Democracy as another "slap at the administration." The president's refusal to be drawn into the fight, although knowing the probable result, is therefore the more commendable.

The simple truth is that Senator Johnson and the president have been more or less personally intimate ever since they became colleagues in the senate. They have not always agreed on matters of policy or program, but they respect one another. Because of this relationship of personal friendship and respect the president has let it be known, by interview and communication, that no device can draw him into the California contest. He will not assent to attempt dictation to any one. He recognizes Senator Johnson's logical candidacy to succeed himself, and he recognizes the right of Senator Johnson's opponent to contest his return to the senate. It is a fine example of the president minding strictly his own business.

NO VALUE CHANGE THROUGH TRADE IS BUREAU DECISION

HOLD THAT FOR TAX PURPOSES EXCHANGE IN PROPERTY DOES NOT EFFECT ASSESSED VALUE

Milwaukee, Wis.—Numerous inquiries have been received by the Bureau of Internal Revenue concerning Section 202 (c) (1) of the Revenue Act of 1921 which provides that for the purposes of the income tax no gain or loss shall be recognized when property held for investment, or for productive use in trade or business (not including stock-in-trade or other property held primarily for sale) is exchanged for property of a like kind or use.

Many taxpayers and salesmen of securities are interpreting this to mean that all sales of securities and the immediate purchase of like securities are exchanges resulting in no gain or loss. Such interpretation of the law and regulations is erroneous.

is Reciprocal Transfer

The Bureau realizes that in many cases it is difficult to determine whether the transaction is a true exchange or really a sale and reinvestment of the proceeds in other securities. To constitute an exchange within the meaning of Section 202 (c) (1) the transaction must be reciprocal transfer of property for property as distinguished from a transfer of property for a money consideration. In such an exchange neither principal would pay a commission to the other, although if a broker in his capacity, as such, negotiated the exchange for either principal the fact that the broker was paid a commission for his services would not of itself take the transaction out of the classification as an exchange.

If a person owning one hundred shares of stock in "A" corporation should instruct a broker to exchange them for shares of stock in "B" corporation, it would be essential in order to bring the transaction within the meaning of the exchange provisions of the revenue act that the person owning the shares of "B" corporation stock should receive the one hundred shares of "A" corporation stock and that the person owning the one hundred shares of "A" corporation should receive the shares of "B" corporation stock. The stock received in exchange should be treated by each party as taking the place of the property exchanged. If, on the other hand, the instructions to the broker are in effect to sell one hundred shares of stock in "A" corporation and invest the proceeds in shares of stock in "B" corporation, the transaction can not be treated as an exchange but is a sale of "A" corporation stock and a purchase of "B" corporation stock. The element of exchange in this case is lacking as there is no reciprocal transfer of securities between principals unless by mere coincidence.

Define Exchange

When the broker in the transaction, whatever his instructions may be, sells the stock in "A" corporation and then buys the stock in "B" corporation, or buys the stock in "B" corporation and then sells the stock in "A" corporation, there is an interval of time, however short, during which one or both of the customers would have title to no securities whatever. In a true exchange the passing of title to the stock in the "A" corporation and acquisition of title to the stock in the "B" corporation, and vice versa, would be simultaneous as to both parties to the exchange.

In all cases where there is a doubt as to whether the transaction is a sale or exchange, all facts connected with the transaction should be submitted to the Bureau of Internal Revenue for a ruling in the matter.

Seek To Halt Cutting Of Strip Through Lakes Park

Milwaukee, Wis.—According to reports the building of a line of steel towers for electric current transmission from a power plant near Ladysmith to the Gogebic iron mines running through the Northern Lakes park tract has been halted only temporarily. This step has caused a great deal of unfavorable comment lately from those who are trying to save this tract for park purposes. It is believed by them that cutting a swath through this region will disfigure the wild beauty of the country.

It is reported that Mr. Parkinson, through whose land, just north of the park, the power company cut a stripe, has protested vigorously, that the company is trying to survey a new route which, while it will keep away from Mr. Patterson's land within the park, will nevertheless run through the park tract.

Officials in charge of the campaign to purchase the Northern Lakes park for state purposes are planning to do everything in their power to keep the power company from going through that section.

They found a still in operation in Sing Sing prison, and according to reports that institution is overcrowded as it is.

Are You the Man Who 'Never Reads Advertisements?'

Some men, who are neither blind nor illiterate, claim sincerely that they "never read advertisements."

Yet, if you could investigate, in each case you would find that the man who "never reads advertisements" used an advertised tooth paste or shaving cream or soap. If he owns an automobile it will be an advertised car. If you ask his opinion of any automobile he will reply in words that might have been lifted bodily from an advertisement of that automobile.

Advertising has formed his opinions to a great degree. He may have received his information through others who obtained their knowledge from advertising. But it is a fact that no man can escape the effect of advertising even if he does say he "never reads advertisements."

Not one of us ever reasoned out entirely from his own mind that the earth is round. If we had not read it or heard it we would never have known it.

In these days of good, truthful, helpful advertising to say, "I never read advertisements" is merely your way of saying, "I don't read all advertisements."

NO VALUE CHANGE THROUGH TRADE IS BUREAU DECISION

HOLD THAT FOR TAX PURPOSES EXCHANGE IN PROPERTY DOES NOT EFFECT ASSESSED VALUE

Milwaukee, Wis.—Numerous inquiries have been received by the Bureau of Internal Revenue concerning Section 202 (c) (1) of the Revenue Act of 1921 which provides that for the purposes of the income tax no gain or loss shall be recognized when property held for investment, or for productive use in trade or business (not including stock-in-trade or other property held primarily for sale) is exchanged for property of a like kind or use.

If a person owning one hundred shares of stock in "A" corporation should instruct a broker to exchange them for shares of stock in "B" corporation, it would be essential in order to bring the transaction within the meaning of the exchange provisions of the revenue act that the person owning the shares of "B" corporation stock should receive the one hundred shares of "A" corporation stock and that the person owning the one hundred shares of "A" corporation should receive the shares of "B" corporation stock. The stock received in exchange should be treated by each party as taking the place of the property exchanged. If, on the other hand, the instructions to the broker are in effect to sell one hundred shares of stock in "A" corporation and invest the proceeds in shares of stock in "B" corporation, the transaction can not be treated as an exchange but is a sale of "A" corporation stock and a purchase of "B" corporation stock. The element of exchange in this case is lacking as there is no reciprocal transfer of securities between principals unless by mere coincidence.

Define Exchange

When the broker in the transaction, whatever his instructions may be, sells the stock in "A" corporation and then buys the stock in "B" corporation, or buys the stock in "B" corporation and then sells the stock in "A" corporation, there is an interval of time, however short, during which one or both of the customers would have title to no securities whatever. In a true exchange the passing of title to the stock in the "A" corporation and acquisition of title to the stock in the "B" corporation, and vice versa, would be simultaneous as to both parties to the exchange.

In all cases where there is a doubt as to whether the transaction is a sale or exchange, all facts connected with the transaction should be submitted to the Bureau of Internal Revenue for a ruling in the matter.

Arpin Holstein Men Meet To Plan Community Fair

The Arpin Holstein Club will meet at Dairymen's Hall this evening for the purpose of planning a community fair for the near future.

Reid Murray, secretary of the state Livestock Breeders Association, will speak.

Entries for the community fair will probably be received at the meeting, and steps will be taken toward the selection of a community show herd to exhibit at the Marshfield fair.

Seek To Halt Cutting Of Strip Through Lakes Park

Milwaukee, Wis.—According to reports the building of a line of steel towers for electric current transmission from a power plant near Ladysmith to the Gogebic iron mines running through the Northern Lakes park tract has been halted only temporarily. This step has caused a great deal of unfavorable comment lately from those who are trying to save this tract for park purposes. It is believed by them that cutting a swath through this region will disfigure the wild beauty of the country.

It is reported that Mr. Parkinson, through whose land, just north of the park, the power company cut a stripe, has protested vigorously, that the company is trying to survey a new route which, while it will keep away from Mr. Patterson's land within the park, will nevertheless run through the park tract.

Officials in charge of the campaign to purchase the Northern Lakes park for state purposes are planning to do everything in their power to keep the power company from going through that section.

They found a still in operation in Sing Sing prison, and according to reports that institution is overcrowded as it is.

Harem attendants in Constantinople have struck because they have had no pay for a year. Conditions there appear to be much worse than even the most pessimistic thought them to be.

After mixing business and pleasure business never looks the same.

Are You the Man Who 'Never Reads Advertisements?'

Some men, who are neither blind nor illiterate, claim sincerely that they "never read advertisements."

Yet, if you could investigate, in each case you would find that the man who "never reads advertisements" used an advertised tooth paste or shaving cream or soap. If he owns an automobile it will be an advertised car. If you ask his opinion of any automobile he will reply in words that might have been lifted bodily from an advertisement of that automobile.

Advertising has formed his opinions to a great degree. He may have received his information through others who obtained their knowledge from advertising. But it is a fact that no man can escape the effect of advertising even if he does say he "never reads advertisements."

Not one of us ever reasoned out entirely from his own mind that the earth is round. If we had not read it or heard it we would never have known it.

In these days of good, truthful, helpful advertising to say, "I never read advertisements" is merely your way of saying, "I don't read all advertisements."

There are quite a few persons who continue to suffer in various stages of illness, because they have failed to find relief through accepted Health-methods.

To these, especially, is Chiropractic recommended, for almost every so-called "incurable" trouble has responded under Chiropractic adjustments. Often relief has been obtained after all other methods have failed, and the patient had given up hope of Health.

Chiropractic Removes the Cause of Disease

Chiropractic is a scientific, drugless method of removing the cause of disease. It proves that practically all illness is the result of spinal interference with the nerve forces of the body, and by a system of adjustments this obstruction is removed and normal conditions restored. Nature cures; health results.

CHIROPRACTIC THE BETTER WAY TO HEALTH

will appeal to those progressive, free-thinking people who are in favor of a saner method of Health restoration, rather than through drugs and surgery. When ill, when feeling out-of-sorts, try Chiropractic (KI-RO-PRAK-TIC), the modern health way for men, women and children. Learn about Chiropractic now.

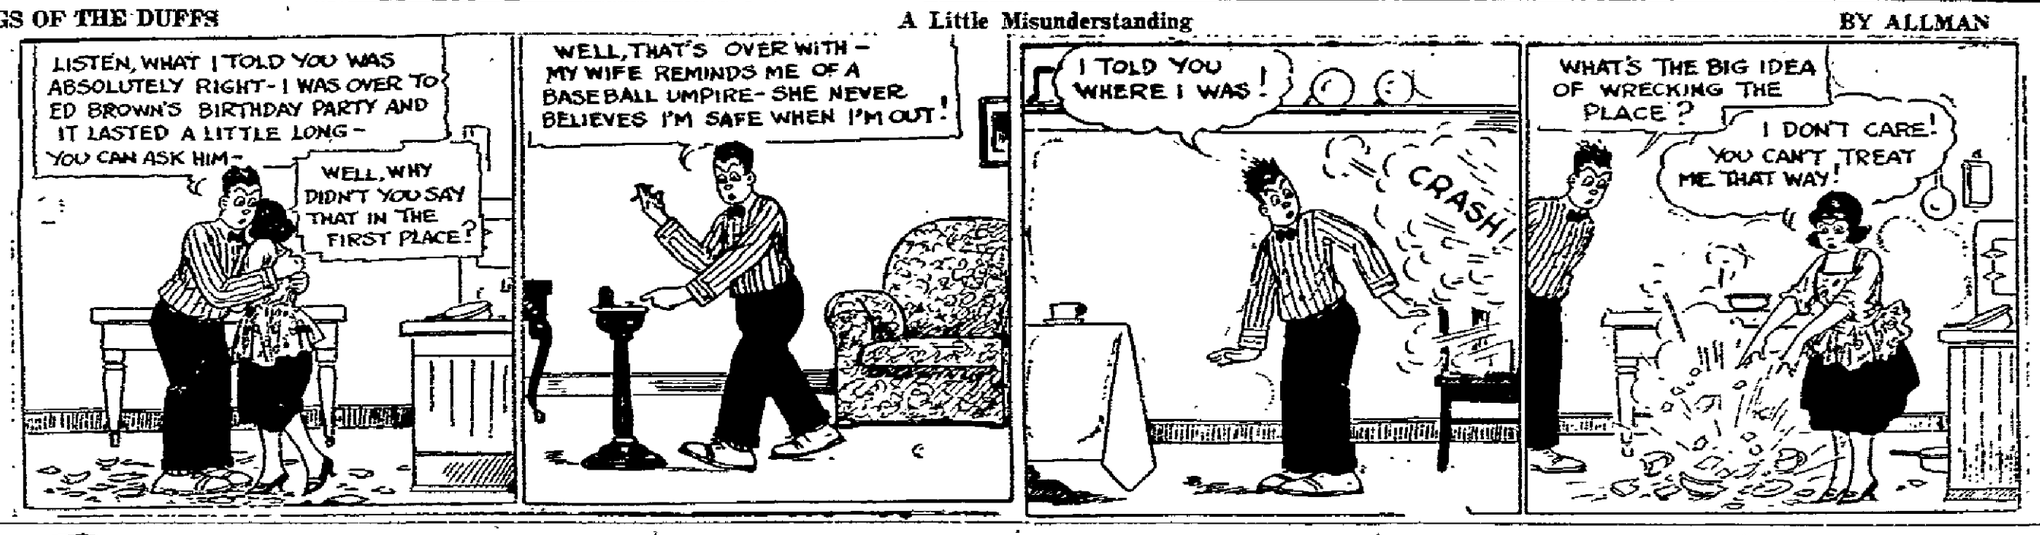
A Little Misunderstanding

BY ALLMAN



SCARAMOUCHE

by Rafael Sabatini

Not for a second was Andre-Louis under any delusion as to the man's deliberate purpose, nor were those who stood near him, who made a belated and ineffectual attempt to close about him. He was grievously disappointed. It was not Chabrillane he had been expecting.

But if Chabrillane was the man appointed to deal with him, he would make the best of it.

"I think you are pushing against me, monsieur," he said, very civilly, and with elbow and shoulder he thrust M. de Chabrillane back into the rain.

Now, for all his slenderness, his assiduous daily sword-pratice had given Andre-Louis an arm of iron. Also he threw his weight into the thrust. His assailant reeled backward a few steps, and then his heel struck a baulk of timber left on the ground by some workmen that morning, and he sat down suddenly in the mud.

A roar of laughter rose from all who witnessed the fine gentleman's downfall. He rose, mid-bespattered, in a fury, and in that fury sprang at Andre-Louis.

"You shall meet me for this!" he spluttered. "I shall kill you for it."

"Whenever you please, monsieur. It is for you to say when it will suit your convenience to kill me. I think that was the intention you announced, was it not?" Andre-Louis wa unvity itself.

"Tomorrow morning in the Bois. Perhaps you will bring a friend."

"Certainly, monsieur. Tomorrow morning, then. I hope we shall have fair weather. I detest the rain."

Chabrillan looked at him almost with amazement. Andre-Louis smiled pleasantly.

"Don't let me detain you now, monsieur. We quite understand each ether. I shall be in the Bois at nine o'clock tomorrow morning."

In the morning, when the Assembly met, his place was vacant, and so was M. de Chabrillane's. Gloom and resentment sat upon the members of the Third, and brought a more than usually acrid note into their debates. They disapproved of the rashness of the new recruit to their body. Some openly condemned his lack of circumspection. Very few—and those only the little group in Le Chapelier's confidence—ever expected to see him again.

It was, therefore, as much in amazement as in relief that at a few minutes after ten they saw him enter, calm, composed, and bland, and thread his way to his seat. The speaker occupying the rostrum at that moment—a member of the Privileged—stopped short to stare in incredulous dismay. Here was something that he could not understand at all. Then from somewhere a voice explained the phenomenon contemptuously.

"They haven't met. He has shirked it at the last moment."

It must be so, thought all; the mystification ceased, and men were settling back into theor seats. But now, having reached his place, having heard the voice that explained the matter to the universal satisfaction, Andre-Louis paused before taking his seat. He felt it incumbent upon him to reveal the true fact.

"M. le President, my excuse for my late arrival," There was no necessity for this. It was a mere piece of theatricality, such as it was not in Scaramouche's nature to forego. "I have been detained by an engagement of pressing nature I bring you also the excuses of M. de Chabrillane. He unfortunately, will be premanently absent from this Assembly in future."

The silence was complete. Andre-Louis sat down.

CHAPTER VII

Nobody laughed now at Andre-Louis flippancy. He did not intend that anybody should. He intended to be terrible: and he knew that the more flippant and casual his tone, the more terrible would be its effect. He produced exactly the effect he desired.

When the session rose, there wre a dozen spadassins awaiting him in the vestibule.

He paused, seeking the man he expected, the man he was most anxious to oblige. But M. de La Tour d'Azyr was absent from those eager ranks. This seemed to him odd. La Tour d'Azyr was Chabrillane's cousin and closest friend. Surely he should have been among the first today.

To Andre-Louis, since La Tour was not one of that waiting pack, it mattered little on that Tuesday morning who should be the next. The next, as it happened, was the young Vicomte de La Motte-Royau, one of the deadliest blades in the group.

On Wednesday morning, coming again an hour or so late to the Assembly, Andre-Louis announced—in much the same terms as he had announced the death of Chabrillane—that M. de La Motte-Royau would probably not disturb the harmony of the Assembly for some weeks to come, assuming that he were so fortunate as to recover ultimately from the effects of an unpleasant accident with which he had quite unexpectedly had the misfortune to meet that morning.

On Thursday he made an identical announcement with regard to the Vidame de Blavon. On Friday he told them that he had been delayed by M. de Troiscantins, and then turning to the members of the Cote Droit, and lengthening his face to a sympathetic gravity:

"I am glad to inform you, messieurs, that M. des Troiscantins is in the hands of a very competent surgeon who hopes with care to restore him to you councils in a few weeks' time."

The Friday of that very busy week found the vestibule of the Menage empty of swordsmen when he made his leisurely and expectant egress with Le Chapelier.

"Have they had enough?" he wondered, addressing the question to Le Chapelier.

Out threre under the awning a group of gentlemen stood in earnest talk. Scanning the group in a rapid glance, Andre-Louis perceived M. de La Tour d'Azyr amongest them. He tightened his lips. He must afford no provocation. It must be for them to fasten their quarrels upon him.

Still, matters could not be legt where they were, or he should have had all his pains for nothing. Carefully looking away from that group of gentlemen, he raised his voice so that his words must carry to their ears.

"It begins to look if my fears of having to spend the remainded of my days in the Bois were idle."

Out of the corner of his eye he caught the stir his words created in that group. Pacing slowly along between his friends he resumed:

"But is it not remarkable that the assassin of Lagron should make no move against Lagron's successor? Or perhaps it is not remarkable. Perhaps the gentleman is prudent."

He had not long to wait. Came a guick step behind him, and a hand falling upon his shoulder, spun him violently round. He was brought face to face with M. de La Tour d'Azyr, whose handsome countenance was calm and composed, but whose eyes reflected something of the sudden blaze of passion stirring in him.

"You spoke of me, I think," said the Marquis quietly.

"I spoke of an assassin—yes. But to these my friends." Andre-Louis' manner was no less quiet.

"You spoke loudly enough to be overheard," said the Marquis, answering the insinuation that he had been eavesdropping. "I perceive that it is your aim to be offensive."

"Oh, but you are mistaken, M. le Marquis. I have no wish to be offensive. But I resent having hands violently laid upon me, especially when they are hands that I cannot consider clean."

The elder man's eyelids flickered. Almost he caught himself admiring Andre-Louis, bearing. Rather he feared that his own must suffer by comparison. Because of this, he enraged altogether, and lost control of himself. "You spoke of me as the assassin of Lagron. But how much better are you, M. the fencing-master, when you oppose yourself to men whose skill is as naturally inferior to your own!"

"I oppose myself to them!" said Andre-Louis on a tone of amused protest. "Ah, pardon, M. le Marquis; it is they who chose to oppose themselves to me—and so stupidly. They push me, they slap my face, they tread on my toes, they call me by unpleasant names. What if I am a fencing-master? Must I on that account submit to every manner of ill-treatment from your bad-mannered friends?

"Comedian!" the Marquis contemptuously apostrophized him. "Are these men who live by the sword like yourself?"

"On the contary, M. le Marquis. I have found them men who died by the sword with astonishing ease. I cannot suppose that you desire to add yourself to their number."

"And why, if you please?" La Tour d'Azyr's face had flamed scarlet before that sneer.

"Oh," Andre-Louis raised his eyebrows and pursed his lips, a man considering. He delivered himself slowly. "Because, monsieur, you prefer the easy victim—the Lagrons and Vilmorins of this world, mere sheep for your butchering. That is why."

And then the Marquis struck him.

The Friday of that very busy week found the vestibule of the Menage empty of swordsmen when he made his leisurely and expectant egress with Le Chapelier.

"Have they had enough?" he wondered, addressing the question to Le Chapelier.

Out threre under the awning a group of gentlemen stood in earnest talk. Scanning the group in a rapid glance, Andre-Louis perceived M. de La Tour d'Azyr amongest them. He tightened his lips. He must afford no provocation. It must be for them to fasten their quarrels upon him.

Still, matters could not be legt where they were, or he should have had all his pains for nothing. Carefully looking away from that group of gentlemen, he raised his voice so that his words must carry to their ears.

"It begins to look if my fears of having to spend the remainded of my days in the Bois were idle."

Out of the corner of his eye he caught the stir his words created in that group. Pacing slowly along between his friends he resumed:

"But is it not remarkable that the assassin of Lagron should make no move against Lagron's successor? Or perhaps it is not remarkable. Perhaps the gentleman is prudent."

He had not long to wait. Came a quick step behind him, and a hand falling upon his shoulder, spun him violently round. He was brought face to face with M. de La Tour d'Azyr, whose handsome countenance was calm and composed, but whose eyes reflected something of the sudden blaze of passion stirring in him.

"You spoke of me, I think," said the Marquis quietly.

"I spoke of an assassin—yes. But to these my friends." Andre-Louis' manner was no less quiet.

"You spoke loudly enough to be overheard," said the Marquis, answering the insinuation that he had been eavesdropping. "I perceive that it is your aim to be offensive."

"Oh, but you are mistaken, M. le Marquis. I have no wish to be offensive. But I resent having hands violently laid upon me, especially when they are hands that I cannot consider clean."

The elder man's eyelids flickered. Almost he caught himself admiring Andre-Louis, bearing. Rather he feared that his own must suffer by comparison. Because of this, he enraged altogether, and lost control of himself. "You spoke of me as the assassin of Lagron. But how much better are you. M. the fencing-master, when you oppose yourself to men whose skill is as naturally inferior to your own!"

"I oppose myself to them!" said Andre-Louis on a tone of amused protest. "Ah, pardon, M. le Marquis; it is they who chose to oppose themselves to me—and so stupidly. They push me, they slap my face, they treadt on my toes, they call me by unpleasant names, What if I am a fencing-master? Must I on that account submit to every manner of ill-treatment from your bad-mannered friends?

"Comedian!" the Marquis contemptuously apostrophized him. "Are these men who live by the sword like yourself?"

"On the contary, M. le Marquis, I have found them men who died by the sword with astonishing ease. I cannot suppose that you desire to add yourself to their number."

"And why, if you please?" La Tour d'Azyr's face had flamed scarlet before that sneer.

"Oh," Andre-Louis raised his eyebrows and pursed his lips, a man considering. He delivered himself slowly. "Because, monsieur, you prefer the easy victim—the Lagrons and Vilmorins of this world, mere sheep for your butchering. That is why."

And then the Marquis struck him.

A Tribune Want Ad Will Find It

A Woman's Private Letter

Received by JANE LEE, the Writer.

My Dear Miss Lee:

Until I used the new GREEN ARROW Soap combining olive oil and naphtha, I thought my laundress must "eat the soap." I knew she didn't take any away, but she certainly made it disappear fast! (She is a quaint old soul but honest as the day is long.)

The first time I tried The Palmolive Co's GREEN ARROW, I gave her the customary number of bars. In the middle of the morning up she came from the laundry with a bar and a half of GREEN ARROW in her hand.

I said, "What's the matter, Mary, isn't that soap any good?"

"Yes'm, it sure am," she said. "I'm all through and I got all this soap left. It sure am the beatingest how the dirt just rolled out of them clothes. It ain't hardly respectable to do a washing without no more work than that."

I laughed and tried to explain to Mary the difference between the pure, all-soap GREEN ARROW bar and laundry bars which are only part soap, as you had explained it in your articles, Miss Lee.

"Now, Mary," I said, "the trouble is that the ordinary white and yellow laundry bars are only part real soap and part some funny stuff they call 'filler.' It's just as if a miller put part chalk in his flour so he could sell every pound for 1c or 2c less.

"This 'filler' doesn't clean a bit. It just means more rubbing, for unless you get most of it out, the clothes often look streaked and grayish and they are sour-smelling. Even worse, it rots and cuts the clothes."

Mary got the idea right away. "And here I've been working all these years to rub that stuff out of the soap into the clothes, and out of the clothes again! I'm surely going to tell all the ladies I work for to get GREEN ARROW for me after this."

A Woman's Private Letter

Received by JANE LEE, the Writer.

My Dear Miss Lee:

Until I used the new GREEN ARROW Soap combining olive oil and naphtha, I thought my laundress must "eat the soap." I knew she didn't take any away, but she certainly made it disappear fast! (She is a quaint old soul, but honest as the day is long.)

The first time I tried The Palmolive Co.'s GREEN ARROW, I gave her the customary number of bars. In the middle of the morning, up she came from the laundry with a bar and a half of GREEN ARROW in her hand.

I said, "What's the matter, Mary, isn't that soap any good?"

"Yes'm, it sure am," she said. "I'm all through and I got all this soap left. It sure am the beatingest how the dirt just rolled out of them clothes. It ain't hardly respectable to do a washing without no more work than that."

I laughed and tried to explain to Mary the difference between the pure, all-soap GREEN ARROW bar and laundry bars which are only part soap, as you had explained it in your articles, Miss Lee.

"Now, Mary," I said, "the trouble is that the ordinary white and yellow laundry bars are only part real soap and part some funny stuff they call 'filler.' It's just as if a miller put part chalk in his flour so he could sell every pound for 1c or 2c less.

"This 'filler' doesn't clean a bit. It just means more rubbing, for unless you get most of it out, the clothes often look streaked and grayish and they are sour-smelling. Even worse, it rots and cuts the clothes."

Mary got the idea right away. "And here I've been working all these years to rub that stuff out of the soap into the clothes, and out of the clothes again! I'm surely going to tell all the ladies I work for to get GREEN ARROW for me after this."

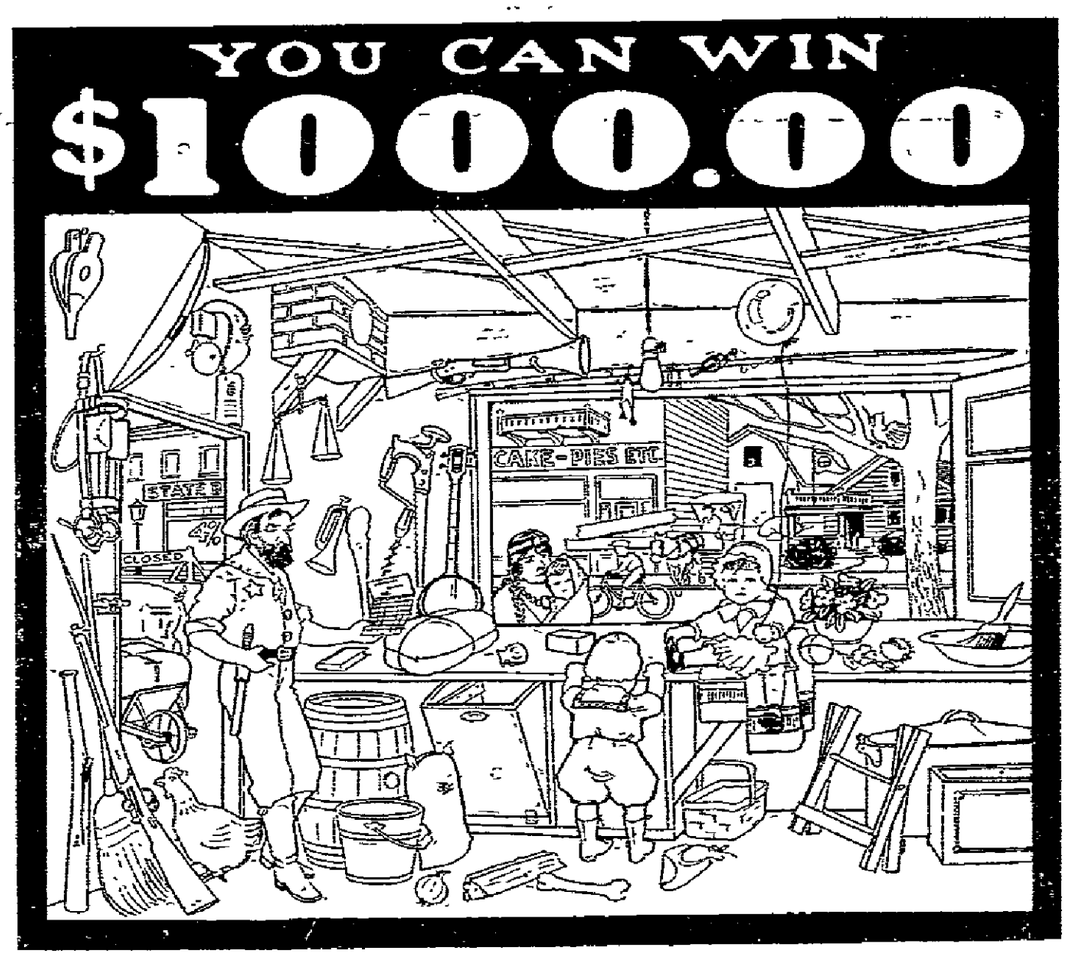
Answer This Puzzle!



How Many Objects That Begin With 'B' Can You Find in This Picture?

In the picture there are a number of objects beginning with the letter "B." How many can you find? It is not hard and you can have loads of fun looking for them. Just see—at a glance you can discover banjo, boy, bicycle, baby, broom, bucket, balloon, bone and bridle. How many more do you see? Write them down on a piece of paper and look for more. You'll be surprised at the ease with which you'll find them. Get the family together and run a race, see who can find the most in half an hour. Then write all of them you find in one list and send it in, first reading the rules to find out just how to do this.

It is loads of fun and you can easily earn $1,000.

Observe These Rules

1. Any man, woman or child living in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Northern Michigan, Montana and Nebraska, but outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis, who is not an employe of The St. Paul Daily News, may submit an answer. It costs nothing to try.

2. All answers must be mailed by postoffice closing time Sept. 2, 1922, and all subscriptions must be mailed not later than Sept. 23, 1922.

3. All lists of names should be written on one side of the paper only and numbered numerically. Write your full name and address on each page in the upper right hand corner. If you desire to write anything, use a separate sheet of paper.

4. Only such words as appear in Webster's dictionary will be counted. Where the plural is used the singular must be counted and vice versa.

5. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used to designate different objects or articles. An object or article can be named only once.

6. Do not use obsolete, archaic, or phrasated words, nor any compound word is formed by the combination of two or more complete English words, as each word in itself is an object.

7. The answer having the nearest correct list of names of visible objects or articles shown in the picture that begin with the letter "B," will be awarded First Prize, etc. Neatness, style or handwriting have no bearing on deciding the winners.

8. More than one member of a family may compete, but only one prize will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group outside of the family where two or more have been working together.

9. Three St. Paul business men, having no connection with The St. Paul Daily News, will be selected to act as judges and they, not the Puzzle Man, nor any one connected with The St. Paul Daily News, will decide on the winners. Participants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.

10. All answers will receive the same consideration, regardless of whether or not a subscription for The St. Paul Daily News is sent in.

11. The announcement of the prize winners and the correct list of words will be published in the Sept. 28th issue of The St. Paul Daily News.

12. In case of a tie for any of the prizes the full amount of such prize will be awarded to each person, just as if there were no tie.

30 Big Cash Prizes

Winning Answers Will Receive Cash Prizes According to Table Below.

	When No Subscriptions Are Sent.	When One Subscription Is Sent.	When Two Subscriptions Are Sent.
1st Prize	$20.00	$500.00	$1,000.00
2d Prize	10.00	250.00	500.00
3d Prize	5.00	125.00	250.00

Qualify Your Answer

By sending in one or two yearly subscriptions—your own subscription, new or renewal, will count—to The St. Paul Daily News at $4.50 a year (add $1.50 for The Sunday News and win an Extra Prize of $250), you can win as much as $500 or $1,000 in cash. This is a bonus reward for boosters. Here's how:

If your answer to the "B-Word" Picture Puzzle is awarded first prize by the Judges and you have sent in ONE yearly subscription to The St. Paul Daily News at $4.50 you will receive $500 instead of $20.

Or, if your answer to the "B-Word" Picture Puzzle is awarded first prize by the Judges and you have sent in TWO yearly subscriptions to The St. Paul Daily News, $9.00 in all, you will win $1,000 instead of $20. Or if you send in $13 for two Daily and Sunday subscriptions you will win $1,250.

If your answer is qualified by a $4.50 subscription, new or renewal, to The St. Paul Daily News and you win second prize, you will receive $250, and if you have sent in two subscriptions and win second prize you will receive $500 and so on down the list of prizes. We will give extra amounts on every one of the 30 prizes

Answer This Puzzle!

How Many Objects That Begin With 'B' Can You Find in This Picture?

In the picture there are a number of objects beginning with the letter "B." How many can you find? It is not hard and you can have loads of fun looking for them. Just see—at a glance you can discover banjo, boy, bicycle, baby, broom, bucket, balloon, bone and bridle. How many more do you see? Write them down on a piece of paper and look for more. You'll be surprised at the ease with which you'll find them. Get the family together and run a race, see who can find the most in half an hour. Then write all of them you find in one list and send it in, first reading the rules to find out just how to do this.

It is loads of fun and you can easily earn $1,000.

Observe These Rules

1. Any man, woman or child living in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Northern Michigan, Montana and Nebraska, but outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis, who is not an employe of The St. Paul Daily News, may submit an answer. It costs nothing to try.

2. All answers must be mailed by postoffice closing time Sept. 2, 1922, and all subscriptions must be mailed not later than Sept. 23, 1922.

3. All lists of names should be written on one side of the paper only and numbered numerically. Write your full name and address on each page in the upper right hand corner. If you desire to write anything, use a separate sheet of paper.

4. Only such words as appear in Webster's dictionary will be counted. Where the plural is used the singular cannot be counted and vice versa.

5. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used to designate different objects or articles. No object or article can be named only once.

6. Do not use obsolete, archaic, or profane words, nor any compound words formed by the combination of two or more complete English words, tho each word in itself is an object.

7. The answer having the nearest correct list of names of visible objects or articles shown in the picture that begin with the letter "B," will be awarded First Prize, etc. Neatness, style or handwriting have no bearing on deciding the winners.

8. More than one member of a family may compete, but only one prize will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group outside of the family where two or more have been working together.

9. Three St. Paul business men, having no connection with The St. Paul Daily News, will be selected to act as judges and they, not the Puzzle Man, nor any one connected with The St. Paul Daily News, will decide on the winners. Participants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.

10. All answers will receive the same consideration, regardless of whether or not a subscription for The St. Paul Daily News is sent in.

11. The announcement of the prize winners and the correct list of words will be published in the Sept. 25th issue of The St. Paul Daily News.

12. In case of a tie for any of the prizes the full amount of such prize will be awarded to each person, just as if there were no tie.

30 Big Cash Prizes

Winning Answers Will Receive Cash Prizes According to Table Below.

	When No Subscriptions Are Sent.	When One Subscription Is Sent.	When Two Subscriptions Are Sent.
1st Prize	$20.00	$500.00	$1,000.00

Qualify Your Answer

By sending in one or two yearly subscriptions—your own subscription, new or renewal, will count—to The St. Paul Daily News at $4.50 a year (add $1.50 for The Sunday News and win an Extra Prize of $250), you can win as much as $500 or $1,000 in cash. This is a bonus reward for boosters. Here's how:

If your answer to the "B-Word" Picture Puzzle is awarded first prize by the Judges and you have sent in ONE yearly subscription to The St. Paul Daily News at $4.50 you will receive $500 instead of $20.

Or, if your answer to the "B-Word" Picture Puzzle is awarded first prize by the judges and you have sent in TWO yearly subscriptions to The St. Paul Daily News, $9.00 in all, you will win $1,000 instead of $20. Or if you send in $12 for two Daily and Sunday subscriptions you will win $1,250.

If your answer is qualified by a $4.50 subscription, new or renewal, to The St. Paul Daily News and you win second prize, you will receive $250, and if you have sent in two subscriptions and win second prize you will receive $500 and so on down the list of prizes. We will give extra amounts on every one of the 30 prizes.

Capitalism, Courts, And Administration Attacked At State Labor Meeting

[illegible] "[illegible] Mr. Oil said:

Mechanism Hidden

"Many of the workers have seen only the immediate employer as the aggressor and have given little thought to the actual instigators in the conspiracy against the people. The money trust usually working quietly, had its spokesmen among the manufacturers, who made no secret of its purpose to suppress industrial activities until labor as well as the farmers were defeated to the point of submission. The poverty plea of the railroads during this period may be pointed out as a contradiction when it is considered that the great financial institutions of the country, which control through direct directorship representation, besides other properties, the railroads, and coal mines, appropriated amounts unprecedented at any other period."

Mr. Oil pointed out that consolidated capital has done everything in its power to suppress union labor. He said, "during the most acute period of unemployment the charge that banks refused to loan money for building purposes and other activities under [illegible] was [illegible] a common discussion."

Administration With Capital

In the fight against labor the national administration has been clearly on the side of organized capital, he said in added "The general attitude of the government is perhaps most clearly reflected in the railroad labor board. The most usual news headlines leave no doubt as to the bias of the authorities: 'United States to Help Break Strike: Armed Guards Placed in Yards: 'United States Outlaws Rail Strike': simultaneously, a leading newspaper informs us that a national campaign approved by the United States government, is started to recruit men to fill vacancies caused by railroad men's strike.' It must be plain to the workers by this time that a government of Wall street cannot be a government by, of and for the people."

The United States supreme court was scored in the Organizers report in which it was said: "No amount of legislation can remove the many injustices from which the people suffer until the judges have been shorn of their power to annul acts of lawmaking bodies and have been made responsive to the will of the people."

He said the most "vicious" of all the decisions of the United States supreme court has been that of declaring the federal child labor law unconstitutional, because of taxes imposed on interstate transportation of products from the labor of children under fourteen years of age.

See New Political Movement

The General Executive Board's report stated that present indications were that the national conference to be held the second Monday in December of this year will result in the formation of a new political movement and the board recommended that the Wisconsin federation be represented and endeavor to incorporate the views as expressed by this Federation in the formation of a new political movement.

The Executive Board called attention to the importance of supporting real co-operative endeavor in bringing about satisfactory conditions through the progressive organizations of farmers; organizations of labor and co-operative societies; the Socialist and Farm-Labor parties; single taxers and other liberal political groups.

Cooperate With Farmers

Wisconsin is known as an agricultural state and consequently, a large proportions of the legislature comes from the rural districts, therefore we must seek to co-operation of the agricultural workers and in turn give them our full co-operation" this was stated in the report of the Legislative committee which brought to the attention of members the large number of measures emanating from the federation together with a number of measures emanating from other sources, many of which are supported by labor, and others, which are sure to be proposed in each session, detrimental to the interests of the working people.

"At this particular time we should give special attention to the election of members of the State Legislature," the report stated. "The importance of legislation cannot be over estimated even though the courts are prone to nullify or misconstrue laws enacted."

The committee's report states that its program includes the preparation of about thirty bills in the interest of labor.
